

TAFT'S VIEWS ON WILSON'S RECORD

(By Former President William H. Taft.)
(Copyright, 1916, by Yale Review. Special Permission to International News Service.)

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21.—The state department is the department of international law. Mr. Bryan was not appointed because of his qualifications to act as secretary of state and to determine the foreign policy of our government. He was appointed to solidify the Democratic party in congress in support of legislation which Mr. Wilson was seeking and with a view to domestic politics.

It would have been difficult to select a man of prominence whose experience and the bent of mind fitted him less to conduct our relations with other countries.

After the sinking of the Lusitania and the unlawful drowning of 150 Americans, the delay of the administration in bringing the sharp issue with Germany to a head has exposed this country to a charge of weakness and vacillation.

The next feature of Mr. Wilson's foreign policy, the consideration of which forces a belief upon the electorate, is that pursued in Mexico. Twelve days before the close of the last administration, through a coup d'état, Huerta had become the constitutional president of Mexico.

He was the only official, de facto or de jure, exercising any real power in Mexico for law and order.

Mr. Wilson and the vice-president had regarded Huerta as a usurper, and Lascruain, a cabinet officer, became by law provisional president. Lascruain appointed Huerta secretary of government and then resigned and by law Huerta succeeded to the provisional presidency. All this was before the death of Madero.

The complexity of Huerta in the killing of Madero has not been established. Huerta himself denied it and there were reasons for attributing the act to others. It was amateur diplomacy and statesmanship which led Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan to assume the right to convict Huerta and declare him ineligible to become the president of Mexico.

Attempt is made to avoid responsibility for the palpable blunders in saying that the situation was "an inheritance" from the last administration. The slightest consideration of the facts and dates shows the lack of weight in such a statement.

Twelve days elapsed between Huerta's accession to the presidency and the inauguration of President Wilson. Ambassador Wilson advised recognition of Huerta after seeing from him action upon the refusal of claims of matters of dispute and of her citizens for injuries sustained by them. Had the Republican administration continued it would have recognized Huerta.

Before the Rotary Club at its monthly supper Wednesday night at the Hotel Eichler, Police Commissioner R. E. Leighton spoke on "Delinquents in Prison Reform." The speaker touched upon the corrective methods in use at Sing Sing prison and other state institutions, and gave a comprehensive survey of results. As for the Mutual Welfare League, some of its features appeal to the speaker but in the latitude given to individuals he was emphatic in his approval.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood gave a talk on the finger print system of identification and illustrated the methods of securing these prints with the Rotarians as subjects. This salient proceedings and Chief Wood's talk was greatly appreciated.

An interesting demonstration of the possibilities and uses of the finger print and how it actually works was given the members of the club during the course of Chief Wood's interesting talk on the subject. The chief had a number of slips of plain white paper which he passed around and called attention to the fact that there was nothing on the paper. He then continued his explanation of the system and finally asked the Rotarians to return the slips he had handed them. They did so and the chief pulled some black powder from his pocket and sprinkled the powder with a camel hair brush. He then passed the slips back to the members and they were somewhat astonished to find that by their simply handling the plain white paper the chief had been able to secure an impression of their finger prints.

The Music Was Good.
The Democratic mass meeting held at the Mansion House on Wednesday evening was fairly well attended and the music of the brass band drawn many to the scene.

William C. DeWitt, state committee president and introduced speakers of the evening, Alfred D. Buren, candidate for senator, the first speaker and he was followed by John M. Quinn of Brooklyn. The usual Democratic promises were made and the Wilson administration

PRISON WARDENS MUST MAKE GOOD

Large Number of Escapes and Attempts to Escape Stir Superintendent Carter to Action—Prison Heads to Be Held Responsible.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Sept. 21.—Aroused by statistics which show that there are 22 escaped convicts from five state penal institutions at large and that thirty-five have attempted escape, State Superintendent of Prisons J. M. Carter today placed his official arm across the portal of super-indulgence and for every future escape the wardens of the several state prisons will be held responsible. Honor and other similar convict bodies may end as the result.

From Auburn prison there have been sixteen escaped convicts, with six returned; from Clinton, one and one returned; from Great Meadow, five, all at large; from Sing Sing, 10, with four returns and from the state farm for women, 3 escapes and 1 returned.

In a letter to wardens and agents of prisons, Superintendent Carter wrote as follows:

"While the superintendent approves of the aims of the honor system and the purpose of the Mutual Welfare League, the number of recent escapes proves conclusively that greater restriction must be placed on the inmates.

"As you know the law imposes upon this department the superintendence, management and control of the state prisons and of the convicts therein and of all matters relating to the government, discipline, police, contracts and fiscal concerns thereof. I need not say, however, that it is understood that there will be no return to brutality or undue severity, but discipline must obtain for the good of the state prison department.

"It has been my desire to see the experiments tested before submitting a decision, but I have now come to a definite conclusion that either the lax methods are employed in their development, I am enclosing a list showing the number of escapes which have taken place since March, 1916, and wish to call your attention to this fact:

"Hereafter, unless you can present to the department sufficient proof that ample precautions were used in the instances of escapes, and can prove that it was beyond your capacity to prevent them, I will be forced to take decisive action and issue stringent orders for the future conduct and management of the institutions under my supervision."

While Alexander Stokes Was Away His Wife Takes Baby and Disappears After Sending Other Children to Home of Neighbor.

While Alexander Stokes of No. 168 Hunter street spent Sunday fishing at Esopus his wife sent the other children over to the home of a neighbor, packed a suit case and with her fifteen months old baby in her arms disappeared. She was last seen Sunday morning boarding a West Shore train going north. The local police department have sent out a general alarm along the river.

Mr. Stokes is employed on a local boatyard and make good wages. Sunday he decided to go fishing and left home early that morning. After he had gone his wife sent one of the older children over to a neighbor's, and later sent the boy over to see if his sister was still there. With the two older children away from the house Mrs. Stokes packed a suit case and took about $35 in money that was in the house and with the youngest child, fifteen months old, in her arms, left home.

When the husband returned he found his wife missing. She had left no word as to where she had gone or why.

The matter was reported to police headquarters and Chief Wood learned that the quarantine report at the West Shore station remembered seeing a woman with a baby answering the description of Mrs. Stokes board the 11:15 train bound north Sunday morning.

Tuesday Mr. Stokes went to New York city looking for his wife. It is said that she left home once before and that time she was found in Hudson.

Mrs. Stokes is a woman 35 years old, five feet in height and weighs about 90 pounds. She has light sandy hair mixed with gray. Any information regarding her whereabouts should be telephoned to police headquarters.

DINNER AND DIAMOND PERSHING TO GET OUT OF MEXICO

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New London, Conn., Sept. 21.—Recommendation that the Pershing column be withdrawn from Mexican soil will be agreed upon by the Mexican and American commissioners within a few days.

The recommendation will be made today by one of the American commissioners here.

The Pershing column has been fedged about with provisions, however. While all of the details have not yet been settled, it is regarded as most probable that the Americans will succeed in convincing the Mexican representatives that a sufficient force of Carranza soldiers must be stationed between Villa's reported whereabouts and the American border to render the line perfectly safe from bandit depredations.

In addition, it is probable that the initial agreement on protection of the border will be included in the plan to be submitted to the Washington and Mexico City governments for ratification. That subject will be left open for elaboration, however, and the border protection proposed recommended jointly with the withdrawal of the Pershing column probably will be in the nature of a make-shift, to serve until the final plan is perfected.

The unofficial report that Villa now controls Chihuahua may affect the withdrawal of Pershing, but for any considerable period, one of the American commissioners said today, Chihuahua is too far to the east and south of the territory occupied by General Pershing's force. It was said, and there was scarcely any chance of the state department directing a movement in that direction for fear of provoking another incident such as that of Carrizal, where American soldiers clashed with General Treviño's men.

TWO NEW TYPHOID CASES REPORTED

Kingston Now Has 17 Cases—First Death on Wednesday—Case at Stone Ridge—No Infantile Paralysis.

This morning two new cases of typhoid fever were reported to Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the health officer. One case is on Lincoln street and the other on Tubby street. Kingston now has seventeen cases of the disease.

The first death in Kingston of typhoid was that Wednesday night of John Hall, a negro, at the Kingston City Hospital. Hall who was employed on Dinan's brickyard was brought in the hospital seriously ill several days ago.

A typhoid fever case has been reported at Stone Ridge. The patient has been brought to the Benedictine Sanitarium today.

No new cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to Dr. Frank Johnston up to noon today.

Clam bake at Point.
Business and professional men of Kingston and their wives are holding a clam bake this afternoon at Kingston Point where "Pop" Parsells is in charge of the commissary details. About 20 persons are enjoying the affair in charge of which are Dr. A. C. Gates, Ernest A. Kelly and Henry Connolly, Jr.

PARALYSIS CASES REPORTED TODAY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany Sept. 21.—One death and fourteen new cases of infantile paralysis outside of Greater New York is the record up to noon today. The death was at Cicero, Onondaga county. The total number of cases is 3,037; of deaths, 550.

The new cases are:
Onondaga county—Syracuse, 5; Cicero, Solway, 1 each.
Westchester county—New Rochelle, Cortland and Yonkers, 1 each.
Oswego county—Oswego and Fulton, 1 each.

Tompkins county—Ithaca, 2.
New York, Sept. 21.—There was an increase of eight cases of infantile paralysis reported today, but there were four less deaths.

According to the Newburgh newspapers there has been a serious recurrence of infantile paralysis in Wappingers Falls, five cases of the disease being reported there on Tuesday, while 3 were also reported from Poughkeepsie. Dr. Thomas K. Cruise, health officer of Wappingers, has tendered his resignation of that post.

At the branch office of the state health department in Middletown on Wednesday, seven cases were reported but none in Ulster county. Three were at Centerville Station, Sullivan county; two at Highland Falls, Orange county; one each at Haverstraw and West Haverstraw, Rockland county.

Newburgh is alarmed at the sixth death from the disease in that city. Little Helen Ackley, aged four years and nine months. This is the sixth death out of a total of eight cases in the city, an unusually high mortality rate. A cat, badly paralyzed, is reported to have been seen in the neighborhood of the Ackley home.

The city of Newburgh plans to open its schools as planned on September 23. A retired physician in that city has urged the use of a pulmotor to revive children apparently dead from strangulation and apparently dead from the throat, which is the most deadly form of the disease. His theory is that the paralysis, which causes death is only temporary and if the body could be kept alive, the throat would soon regain its functions. Newburgh raises its quarantine on children on Friday of this week.

Health Officer John I. Becker, who has done efficient work in Highland and in the town of Lloyd in combating the epidemic, in a statement to the New Paltz Times, says there have been 23 cases in all of which 15 were resident and five non-resident. Eight deaths occurred, of which five were resident and three non-resident. Of the 15 now living, he says 11 will recover wholly. Three others are improving and another child still critically ill.

New Paltz will raise its quarantine on children on Saturday.

For the second time since the strike began, a subway train was attacked. A Broadway train on the elevated section at Manhattan street, was stoned from a roof and several passengers were cut by glass.

A woman passenger was seriously hurt when a southbound Sixth Avenue elevated train was showered with missiles at 132nd street. Five northbound Sixth Avenue train were stoned during the early hours and one man seriously injured by flying glass.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Olathe, Kans., Sept. 21.—Berl Dudley, an ex-convict, who was convicted of murdering Henry Muller and his wife near here, was taken from the Johnson county jail early today by an armed mob and lynched. Dudley was a white man.

The mob came to the jail and forcibly took the prisoner. He was strung up to a telegraph pole. Fear against Dudley has been running high since the murder on August 20. Dudley went to his death screaming curses at his slayers. The job was completed in a few minutes and the mob dispersed in a matter of minutes. It is believed most of the band were citizens of Stilwell, a village near the Muller farm.

Dudley was taken from the jail only after a hard fight with Sheriff Lon Carroll and men of the city department. The sheriff refused to deliver his prisoner when the mob demanded him, but he was seized and overpowered. Then the firemen came with hose and attacked the crowd. They were covered at pistol points. Armed with sledges and axes, the masked men then began to batter down the doors of the jail and soon had their man.

A rope was thrown about his neck and he was led a quarter of a mile from town and strung up.

FATHER McCUE STRICKEN.
Former Rector of St. Joseph's Stricken With Paralysis.

The Rev. Edward J. McCue, pastor of the Church of St. Rose of Lima, New York city, suffered a stroke of paralysis at his home in New York on Wednesday and is in a critical condition in St. Vincent's Hospital.

Father McCue formerly was pastor of St. Joseph's Church in this city and the announcement of his condition will come as a shock to his many friends here. Wednesday was his fifty-second birthday. During his pastorate of St. Joseph's he made many friends throughout the county and on his numerous visits to Kingston since then he has always received a warm welcome.

Violence Grows in New York

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 21.—Widespread and apparently systematic violence, more determined and serious than any that has gone before, marked the traction strike today, with no settlement of the difficulty in sight. A subway train and several elevated trains were attacked in the early hours and bottles and stones hurled through the windows. Police reserves did their best to cope with the strike sympathizers and several arrests were made.

Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, is taking an active part in efforts to prevent the calling of a general industrial strike, set for Monday and Tuesday, which would involve 800,000 workers in the metropolitan district.

Gompers heads a delegation of union leaders who will confer this afternoon with a similar committee of the Citizens' Committee of Seventy. Theodore Shonts, president of the union, following a conference with Mayor Mitchell, still refused to deal with the carmen union, which were not considered bright.

Labor leaders continue to insist that, unless a settlement of the traction strike be reached by 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the general industrial tie-up will be called early next week.

For the second time since the strike began, a subway train was attacked. A Broadway train on the elevated section at Manhattan street, was stoned from a roof and several passengers were cut by glass.

A woman passenger was seriously hurt when a southbound Sixth Avenue elevated train was showered with missiles at 132nd street. Five northbound Sixth Avenue train were stoned during the early hours and one man seriously injured by flying glass.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 21.—With 333 up-state election districts still to be heard from, to make the results complete, William M. Calder of Brooklyn, at noon today still maintained his lead over Robert Bacon, a Republican contest for United States senator.

Calder's lead, at last accounts, stood at 6,750 and his managers could not believe that the missing districts could change the result, but Bacon refused to concede defeat. It was said that his adherents may demand an official recount.

RETURN OF THE REGIMENTS.
Fourteenth at Brooklyn Armory, 71st on Way to Manhattan.

The Fourteenth Regiment after an absence of three months from its home station, Brooklyn, returned there late Wednesday night from Camp Whitman and is now quarantined in the big armory until the medical officers believe it safe to release the men. The celebration of the home-coming had to be given up because of the quarantine restrictions. The cold and dampness at Camp Whitman decided the health officers to break camp.

The Seventy-first Regiment will receive their respective armories for about 15 days in quarantine and no visitors will be allowed.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Mrs. Mary W. Myer, of the town of Ulster, widow of the late Howard Myer of this city, has been filed with Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court and a citation for its probate issued returnable October 2. To the trustees of Wiltwyck Rural Cemetery Association, the testatrix bequeaths the sum of $25 in trust, the income to be used for the perpetual care of the lot of her father, Philip Woolsey. The life use of the farm, stock, farming implements, etc., is given by the testatrix to her father, the executors and trustees, however, being given power to sell, but if not so sold the property at his death is to become part of the residuary estate. The balance of the estate is given to the executors and trustees, or the survivor of them, for the benefit of the three children of the testatrix, Phyllis, Howard and Katherine Myer, until Katherine, the youngest child, becomes 26 years of age, when the trust fund is to be divided equally among the children; or in the event of the death of Katherine before she reaches the age of 26 years, the trust estate is to be distributed when the daughter, Phyllis, becomes 23 years old, Philip Woolsey, the father, and Philip Liting are appointed executors and trustees. The will was executed March 28, 1916, and witnessed by Joseph M. Schaefer and Jennie L. Humphrey. The value of the real estate is $8,000, and the personal property amounts to $15,000. Philip Elting appeared for himself and his co-executor and trustee.

County Treasurer Snyder, as appraiser under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of Guiditta Toli, of the town of Olive. The personal property amounts to $60; the real estate is valued at $1,200; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $57.50, leaving a net estate of $1,102.50, which is exempt from tax. The request was granted and the men will be transferred to other New York regiments. General Funston issued orders to all commanding officers along the border to adopt this same ruling in other cases.

"There is no reason," he said, "if a man wishes to stay on the border he should not be allowed to do so. His two months training has made him a man worth keeping."

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 21, 1916.

While Tuesday's primary was marked by vigorous contests between candidates for some of the State offices, the enrolled voters of Ulster county overwhelmingly approved the selections for county offices made by the delegates in the Republican county convention last month. That convention was made up of the most representative men not only of the party but of the county. Three delegates from each election district in the county made up a convention which in every sense must be regarded as representative, and in their representative capacity the delegates preserved the best traditions not only of Republicanism but of representative government as that system was installed by our forefathers and carefully nurtured since. Under the election law these delegates could merely recommend nominations; the act of nomination is conferred on the enrolled voters at the primary election. Contests, under the traditions and usage of the Republican party in Ulster, are decided in the convention, and a united electorate stands firmly behind the choice of the majority in the primary and at the polls on election day.

For the important office of county treasurer Philip Schantz of Highland is the Republican nominee. His experience in public affairs insures in his candidacy a nominee who thoroughly understands every department of the county government. As a member of the board of supervisors for twenty-one years, during most of which time he has been the Republican leader, he has come in closer contact with the people than almost any other man in the county. Town and county affairs are the foundation of government and when these are well managed by an individual it is but natural that he should be called to higher honors, and his past record speaks eloquently of the trust which the voters of the county can repose implicitly in Mr. Schantz in his candidacy for the office of county treasurer.

Frederick G. Traver's active participation in the government of the county as assistant district attorney for many years made him the natural selection of the electors for the nomination of district attorney. Among a long line of distinguished predecessors it would be difficult to find a more careful, painstaking, conscientious and capable official. The district attorney must not only be the prosecuting officer in all criminal affairs, but to a large extent he must exercise judicial discretion, and the grand jurors and trial jurors as well as all others who have followed the course of court work in Ulster county for many years take pleasure in expressing their knowledge of his pre-eminent qualifications for the office and the desirability and necessity of continuing him there in full charge in order that justice in its broadest sense may be done.

The county ticket is completed by the nomination of Ernest A. Kelly of Kingston for coroner. Mr. Kelly during his three years' service has made good and has co-operated with every other official. Kingston city needs a coroner and if from no other reason than geographical location the entire county concedes that it should have Mr. Kelly. But there are other reasons, first among which stands Mr. Kelly's own good record.

Speaking before a Springfield, Illinois, audience, Candidate Hughes stripped the chief defenses which administration apologists have endeavored to throw up around the Adamson law in a masterly fashion when he asked: "Of those who seek to excuse the Administration's surrender on the ground of exigency I ask, how far do you propose to yield to force?" There is the question in a few words. No matter if it be several hundred thousand organized voters making a demand for an increase of a wage already well above the average, or a mere handful of capitalists, or labor leaders, all seeking some selfish advantage at the public expense, the spectacle of legislation before investigation is nothing more than the surrender of constitutional powers to force. It must be that the framers of the constitution in their wisdom foresaw just some such bludgeon being raised against the Federal Government as that which was so effectively struck by the Brotherhoods. To prevent any entire surrender, they devised three co-ordinating branches of government in the executive, the legislative and judicial departments. Save for the last named, the Supreme Court of the United States, about everything else but their salaries has been surrendered by the President and Congress in response to the Brotherhoods' demands. And if this action by the executive and legislative branches is proclaimed as just where will the government stop when it comes to future demands of other organized classes for wage increases? Thoughtful persons may well pause to consider the possibilities accompanying the New Idea in the adjudication of industrial disputes. The administration will pause an even longer time before it attempts a direct answer to Mr. Hughes' illuminating question.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"I saw your wife and daughter the other day, but they didn't see me." So they said.—Boston Transcript.

He (explaining about stocks): "You know what margin is, don't you?" She—"Oh, yes. That's the money you put up and lose."—Boston Transcript.

"Did you cure that patient you had with the falling memory?" "I thought so at one time," replied the doctor, "but I'm not so sure about it now. He went away and forgot to pay his bill."—Judge.

"What about your case?" demanded the judge, who couldn't quite make out what the prisoner was trying to say. "Please, your honor, the district attorney said it was to be a nolle prosequere."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Do you believe that everybody can be hypnotized?" "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "In my campaign experience I have found that with the proper words and gestures you can hypnotize everybody. The trouble is that you don't know what minute they are going to wake up."—Washington Star.

High Cost of Loving.
"Cheer up, old boy," advised the married man. "You know 'tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all."
"Yes," agreed the rejected suitor, jingling a bunch of keys in his pocket. "Better for the florist, the confectioner, the messenger boy, the restaurant waiter, the taxicab man, the theatrical manager and the jeweler."—Smy Stories.

Not An Evangelist.
The orthodox minister's son, Tommy, five, had a fight with a larger boy, with the usual result. As his mother washed the blood and tears from his face, he sobbed.
"Jimmy will go away into everlasting punishment for this, won't he, Ma?"
"Oh, I hope he'll repent and be saved," said the mother.
"Well, I just hope he won't," said Tom.—The Christian Herald.

Father's Last Word.
The following amusing passage took place between counsel and a witness in a disputed will case:
"Did you father give you no parting admonition?"
"He never gave much away at any time."
"I mean to say what were his last words?"
"They don't concern me, sir."
"They not only concern me, sir, but they concern the whole court."
"Oh, all right," was the reply.
"Father said, 'Don't have no dispute when I'm gone, Jim, 'cos lawyers is the biggest rogues un-lung.'"

Going the Rounds.
There is one comment that the average country editor can make on almost anything he sees in the news. Anything will serve as a text for his favorite sermon. Pick up any country paper, any issue, and you will find a paragraph similar to this one from the Muskogee (Minn.) Chronicle: "Some one has discovered the blues is to get fat and cure the blues is to eat hay. If a few subscribers don't drop in and settle up, the editor will join the movement."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MRS. E. H. HARRIMAN & WILLIAM AVERELL HARRIMAN

MRS. HARRIMAN GIVES SON $5,000,000 ESTATE.

Goshen, N. Y., Sept. 20.—For the consideration of $1 and "love and affection" named in the deed, Mrs. E. H. Harriman has transferred the Arden house to her son, William Averell Harriman, together with the 2,500 acres surrounding it. The entire estate is valued at more than $5,000,000.

The deed is dated August 3, 1916, but was not placed on record in the county clerk's office in Goshen until last week. It is said to represent the largest single real estate transaction in the history of Orange county.

W. Averell Harriman, 24 years old, was married to Miss Kitty Lawrence, of Lenox, Mass., Sept. 21, 1915. Since his marriage he has been living in a wing of the building constructed for him. The estate is situated on the threshold of the Hudson Highlands and represents one of the accomplishments of E. H. Harriman's life in which he took his greatest pride and delight. It was uncompleted at the time of his death, but since then has been finished in accordance with the plans and designs which were prepared under his direction. The architecture of the house is of the French Renaissance. The entire building contains more than 150 rooms and stands on a shoulder of Mount Orama, 1,069 feet above sea level.

Judicial Rebuke.
It is said of Chief Justice Tilghman of Pennsylvania that he had a great regard for a dignified administration of justice. "And the only time," writes David Paul Brown, "that we ever observed him to be disconcerted upon the bench was upon one occasion when, the business of the day having terminated, his associates arose suddenly and were walking off without a formal adjournment, when, turning to them, with his usual modesty, but with some evidence of mortification, he said, 'Gentlemen, shall we adjourn, run away or resign?'—Cook and Corns."

New Fall Silks and Dress Goods

In the Newest Shades and Weaves

We have been especially careful in the selection of our Silks and Dress goods this season, accepting only reliable merchandise.

Every price marked is the right price for the value and the grade. In fact, we are marking these goods at a closer margin than ever before. This does not mean that prices are lower than last year, for they are not.

This season it is a question of quality rather than price, and we have the quality.

The point is that in this store you are sure of your quality, because VanWagenen's sells no other kind. We believe that silks and dress goods are going even higher. We feel that it is the part of wisdom for those who require silks to buy them now—this month, this week.

How the Days Go By.

Frank looked up thoughtfully from his engine and cars game of railroad, played on the primitive plan of a five-year-old boy.

"Mamma, isn't it funny how the days go by, one after the other, just like a train of cars, with Sunday for the engine?"

ORPHEUS' PAINTING OF A FJORD WAS PEARY'S "CROCKER LAND" A MIRAGE LIKE THIS?

(Photograph of a Painting by A. Orphei, a Member of Peary's Arctic Expedition Trip of 1896-1897. Now in Possession of Dr. Chester A. Reed, Assistant Curator of the Museum of Natural History.) Many are the tricks which strata of air, heated to varying temperatures, have played upon Arctic and Antarctic explorers. When Commander Peary returned from his last expedition into northern wastes he brought with him a story of a strange land which he had discovered, and to which, in lieu of something better, he had named Crocker Land. No one doubted Peary's word. It was taken for granted that his discovery was authentic. But now comes along Eustice Fitzhugh Green, a member of the exploring party sent north by the Museum of Natural History to verify Peary's claim, with the declaration that Crocker Land does not exist, that Peary had been fooled by a mirage, a land mirrored in the sky's reflection, which faded with the passing of the mist.

Business Is Business.

We like to read a society novel once in awhile; there is always sure to be some good old-fashioned stuff that everyone has forgotten.—Milwaukee Journal.

On Crocker's Isle.

Crocker saw the footprint. "There is more than one around here," he muttered. "That is plainly a man trying to get home without making his wife."

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 21.—Governor Hughes has gone after the Wilson administration with sledge-hammer blows, according to reports from the middle west, where he is now campaigning, and his audience have exhibited a responsiveness and enthusiasm highly gratifying to the Republican managers. Taking as his text Mr. Wilson's statement of four years ago, "Our platform is not measures to catch flies," Mr. Hughes has shown that most of the Democratic platform pledges have been broken, including those regarding economy in public expenditures, the creation of useless offices, the lowering of the cost of living, the repeal of the Panama canal tolls law, the single presidential term, the protection of American citizens abroad.

Referring to the Adamson wage increase law, Mr. Hughes said, "It was nothing more than a measure to fix wages and as a measure to fix wages it must be judged. If as such a measure it was justified, it needs no further excuse. We are not concerned with anything that was said of the judgment of society with respect to an eight hour day. There is plainly no judgment of society on the increase of wages this bill requires. The phrase 'eight hour day' is apparently used to tickle the public ear in order to establish something quite different." And again, "The Adamson bill is a force bill. It was legislation without inquiry, without knowledge. The demand by the administration for such legislation as the price of peace is a humiliating spectacle. It was not only a serious misuse of official authority, but a deplorable abdication of moral authority."

Wilson Solely Responsible.
One phase of the railway wage affair which has not been generally appreciated is that President Wilson was himself solely responsible for the crisis which led him to direct congress to pass the Adamson bill. For years there has been in existence a federal board of mediation and conciliation. It has gained the respect of both employers and employees and has never experienced any failure in its history. But it was not successful because it has been a wholly independent body, never interfered with by any cabinet officer or any president, prior to Mr. Wilson. From the beginning of the serious stage of the railway controversy, Mr. Wilson's every step was calculated to insure a failure of the efforts of this board. Daily announcements from the White House declared that Mr. Wilson was watching the controversy with keenest interest. When employers and employees were unable to reach an agreement, Mr. Wilson announced that he had "directed" the board, over which under the law, he had no authority, to proceed to New York, thus reducing it to the position of a subordinate body, and inviting an appeal to himself as a higher authority, and when the efforts of the board failed to meet with success, he announced from the White House that it did not meet with success and that he would take the matter in hand, thus insuring its failure. The brotherhoods, naturally and wisely, preferring the mediation of a president who was actively seeking his own re-election, and on the eve of a campaign, would not thereafter let the board settle the strike along lines of strict justice and impartiality. And no one can blame them for preferring to trust their cause to Mr. Wilson.

Wilson Betrayed Arbitration.
The law creating the board of mediation provides that if mediation fails the board shall devote all its energies to bringing about arbitration. Mr. Wilson promptly ignored this law, violating it in spirit, prejudging the case and ordering the railways to abandon hope of arbitration. He further said that the eight hour day was a wage basis had "the sanction of the judgment of society." Once the president of the United States had made such a declaration, the Brotherhood leaders could not accept less. They told congress that very thing and said that if they accepted less they would be branded as "traitors" by their fellow workmen. Of course, arbitration would not have given to Mr. Wilson that labor vote which he hoped to gain by advocating the 8-hour wage basis, any more than would have a settlement by the legally constituted board of mediation. It will be found that Mr. Wilson's determination to butt into the situation and make of it an issue, was to promote his own political fortune was the sole cause of the acute stage of the controversy and the Adamson wage-increase law.

Progressives in Line.
If any further demonstration that the Progressives have returned to the Republican party were needed it was furnished by the New York primary election, in which Governor Whitman, the overwhelmingly nominated and widely advertised as supporting President Wilson, including Bainbridge Colby, went down to ignominious defeat. These Demo-Progressives had named Judge Seabury as the Progressive primary candidate against Governor Whitman. Out of a total Progressive enrollment of 46,208, only 1,806 Progressive votes were cast for Judge Seabury. The Progressives in this state have received every possible value from the Democratic managers who to them of a strong showing of Progressive disaffection against the Wilson administration.

Wilson Worried.
The extreme complacency of President Wilson, who hitherto has been so confidently of his own re-election, has given place to serious anxiety, according to the correspondence at Long Branch. Mr. Wilson made it a rule never to read any edition of himself and as he is not an agreeable recipient of unpleasant news, his advisers have carefully refrained from telling him much of the popular view of himself and his administration. The Maine election, therefore, proved an eye opener to him. He had accepted the assurance of Josephus Daniels and his friend, Sam Undermyer, that all was well and that Maine would elect two Democratic senators, a governor and four members of the house. Now possibility of doubt that Republicans and that the most painstaking scrutiny of the Maine vote reveals nothing but a strong indication of his own defeat in November, he is both worried and irritable and summonses to come to Long Branch are by no means welcomed by the Democratic managers.

Nebraska All Right.
The Republican campaign managers are mystified by reports which apparently have no parentage to the effect that Republican prospects in Nebraska are not bright. Their private reports from that state indicate most satisfactory conditions with brilliant prospects not only of carrying the electoral vote for Hughes but of defeating Hitchcock, who is running for re-election as senator. Senators in that state, while Republican prognosticators insist that the now that he has come out for Wilson, is put in the embarrassing position of having to support Hitchcock, candidate of the "wets," despite Mr. Bryan's well known opposition to anything wet, other than grape-juice. It is also reported that Mr. Hughes' stand on the Adamson wage-increase law has the approval of all the farmers of the state.

JAPANESE EDITOR IN RAPID CHANGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Tokyo, Sept. 21.—One of the quickest editorial turns on record has just been performed in the Kokum (Nation) of Tokyo by its well known editor, Tokutomi. A Sunday talk to young men Tokutomi proved that America is not a peaceful nation, that her diplomacy is boorish and high handed, that she was following the "gunboat" policy in the Pacific, and that Japan was destined to be her immediate adversary, and in Tuesday and Wednesday editorials the same writer took even greater pains to show what she follows the Americans are.

No special reason is apparent for the change but it is a curious coincidence that at the very same time another newspaper suddenly let the quillotine fall on a new serial story in which the coming war between Japan and America was to be described.

You cannot account for these things any more than you can explain the weather, but you can note the signs in the heavens, and the forecast to be drawn up from the newspaper phenomena mentioned: Diplomatic fair weather over the Pacific in the immediate future. A few extracts from Tokutomi will show how the wind veered.

"Let us be honest and face the facts about Japan's relations with America," he says in his first article, "for we are more interested in our relations with America than with Germany. Sixty years ago we were obliged to welcome Commodore Perry. We were then off our guard but is there no danger that the same thing may be repeated? If anyone says Japan is trying to make trouble with America he is fabricating."

"But because Japan has no intention of invading the United States can we say that America is a pacific nation but her history is one of war from the beginning. Washington was a great general. American continental expansion was the result of war with Mexico; American expansion abroad was the result of war with Spain.

"America's high-handed diplomacy astonished even Bismarck. Americans know themselves but they do not know others and the result is that they take reckless measures, the blind man not fearing the snake."

"America thinks she can do anything and comes out in boorish fashion, interfering with everything. Mr. Knox's proposal to neutralize the Manchurian railway is an example. The discriminatory treatment of the Japanese in California is another."

"Lord Palmerston thought the gunboat policy was the best way to deal with small, weak and half-civilized countries. America appears to be following this policy on the Pacific Ocean and Japan is destined to be her immediate opponent, whether we will or no. All business we do with each other's health but when a man is sick the doctor should tell him the truth. We hope for friendship between Japan and America, but by what guarantee is that hope sustained?"

The article was translated without comment in the Japan Advertiser, the American organ in Japan, and next day Tokutomi began to write the sweetest things about Americans.

"I am not a worshipper of America," he says, "but I admire the American spirit. Aside from the question of Japanese immigrants the Americans love the liberty of freedom, as advocated by Benjamin Franklin.

"America is the only country in the world where society is not circumscribed by conventionalities. In Germany the hand of the government reaches every corner. In England social restraints control all sections of society. In America there is nothing to bind the individual activity of the citizens, who, brought up in such an atmosphere, become active, self-reliant and indomitable.

"The Americans are rustic persons but not savages. They are not garden bushes but trees growing wild in the woods. Lincoln was a rustic sage, Roosevelt is a rustic hero.

"In different localities of America different characteristics prevail. For instance, Boston is like England and in the south there is a lovely characteristic among the people who formerly owned slaves. In spite of all these differences, a typical Americanism prevails throughout the land. The society is free and the people are active and energetic."

Next day Tokutomi undertook to define true Americanism. He wrote: "Muensterberg says: It is a spirit of self-guidance. Van Dyke says it is self-reliance. Emerson says it is to walk with one's own feet, work with one's own hands, think one's own thoughts.

"There is nothing impossible in the eyes of Americans. Before a house is quite burned down they begin to build a new one.

"Americans know the value of money better than any other people, but they are not money worshippers. Even when they could afford to be idle they work at full speed. The French boast of their Eiffel Tower, but every street in America has its Eiffel Towers.

"The fact that Americans manage things successfully is due to their sense of fairness. They do not try to get the better of people but are content with their own share.

"If there is anything to be said against the Americans it is that they are too anxious to increase their ability, but that is a fault which other nations might share to their own advantage."

Value of Learning.
Learning, if rightly applied, makes a young man thinking, attentive, industrious, confident, and wary; and an old man cheerful and useful. It is an ornament in prosperity, a refuge in adversity, an entertainment at all times; it cheers in solitude, and gives moderation and wisdom in all circumstances.—Palmer.

The yoke at the shoulder with choker turnover collar is also modish and new.

Bridges in Korea.
Some idea of the delights of traveling in Korea is given by the following description by a traveler of the "bridges" in that country:

A first class bridge in Korea is simply an assortment of planks nailed together. These are scarce.

A second class bridge is a series of isolated stones, from one to another of which the visitor may jump.

A third class bridge, much the commonest variety, is invisible, its position being indicated by a couple of posts, one on each side of the river. They mean that you may safely wade across, as the water will probably not go much over your chest.
